NEW - Counted Embroidery Linen!

In addition to the Jacobean Linen Twill introduced earlier this month, we've just added Counted (32 threads per inch) Embroidery Linen to our product offerings. This high-quality evenweave linen arrived straight from the mill in Belgium. There are two colors available, white and ecru. It's available in one yard, half yard, and project sized options. It's exquisite! And just a little teaser - more linen offerings coming really soon - yippee!

I'm starting to work my RSN blackwork project on this linen. I've included a picture below to give you an idea how it is with stitching (keep in mind I'm new to blackwork :-)).

Appleton Wool - It's Classic!

Next year will be Wooly Thread's 30-year anniversary! The thing that started it all was Appleton wool. Wooly Thread carries the full line of Appleton wool. This British made classic is tried and true. If you haven't tried it, you might consider Appleton wool for your next project. And as a bonus - it's very affordable at just $1.95 per skein. We also have a Club available allowing you to get the full product line over a period of time. We also offer a shade card and many Taster Packs.

Hope your spring is going well. The flowers are blooming here in North Carolina. Temperatures are rising - it's so beautiful to sit outside in the evenings. I have a lot of stitching WIP currently. I just mailed off my RSN applique piece for evaluation (yay!), am putting finishing touches on my advanced goldwork piece and starting to sample my blackwork project. I'm also working on finishing up Jenny Adin Christie's owl kit that I started last summer at the Bath Summer School. I'll drop in a photo when I finish that little beauty off. I can't say I've ever worked a more detailed project in my life!

Excitingly, we just got a new puppy, Bella. She's brought some newfound energy to the house (amongst other things). Oliver, our 10-year-old French Bulldog, is super excited about the new situation. He's so chill and loves to play - he's a great big brother.

Until next time, do all what makes you happy. Best, Deb.
